KING TAKES UP U. S. PROTEST

England's Ruler Personally Interested in Negotiations Relative to President's Note.

LONDON PRESS IS AMIABLE

Washington Officialdom Takes Comfort From the Report of Ambassador Page That Attitude of British People Is Friendly.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

International News Service Correspondent. London, Jan. 4.—From a high government source it is learned that King George is taking a personal part in the foreign office negotiations relative to the reply to President Wilson's note protesting against interference with American commerce by British warships at sea. It is understood that the Foreign Minister Sir Edward Grey, Prime Minister Asquith and other influential members of the government are in favor of an immediate, conciliatory reply.

Following the exchange of more notes it is expected that an international arrangement will be effected whereby American ships will be freed from delay, searches and seizures by British warships and the same principle of non-interference, except in special cases, will be maintained toward other neutral shipping.

The French and Russian foreign offices are reported to be in touch with the British foreign office in the matter.

Press is Amiable.

Since the publication here of the full text of President Wilson's note the British press has adopted a much more amiable attitude toward the United States' protest. Practically all the influential newspapers are urging the government to meet the United States half way and to lose no time in effecting a solution of the neutral shipping problem which will prevent friction in the future.

One paper, the London Statist, professes the belief that British bankers are really behind the neutral trade over which the question of interference has arisen.

Washington, Jan. 4.—An examination of precedents disclosed, according to officials here, a point strongly in favor of the American contention in its note of protest to Great Britain against interference with American shipping.

It is felt that this government before the election of the Civil War descended orders issued earlier in the conflict to officers of the United States army to search without previous search all merchant vessels of neutrals on the high seas which were suspected of carrying contraband to the Confederate states. This point is regarded as especially significant when taken in connection with the fact that when England was the neutral and the United States the belligerent, Great Britain moved to prevent indiscriminate seizures and the United States was obliged to recall its orders.

British Attitudes Friendly.

Washington officialdom took further comfort from the report of Ambassador Page at London that the general attitude of the British government and people toward the American protest was entirely friendly. It served to strengthen the general belief in both official and diplomatic circles that a mutual basis would be reached for an agreement to relieve exporters of this country from the uncertainty under which they have been laboring.

SURVIVOR TELLS HOW BATTLESHIP WAS DESTROYED

Britain's Gravest War Vessel Formidable Vanished in Five Minutes After Attack.

Survivors Picked Up by Trawlers Had All Their Clothing Blown Off by Explosion — Weather Was Rough and Seas High.

London, Jan. 4.—The admiralty issued an official announcement saying that thirty-five officers lost their lives in the sinking of the Formidable.

Paris, Jan. 4.—An unconfirmed report was circulated here that the British battleship Formidable was sunk at the English channel of Devonshire New Year's day, was destroyed by one or more German submarines has been established. According to information secured from survivors, the ship was attacked on the fishing banks off Dartmouth and was torpedoed both fore and aft, sinking within less than five minutes.

London, Jan. 4.—That the British battleship Formidable, which was sunk in the English channel of Devonshire New Year's day, was destroyed by one or more German submarines has been established. According to information secured from survivors, the ship was attacked on the fishing banks off Dartmouth and was torpedoed both fore and aft, sinking within less than five minutes.

Although the admiralty announced that at least seventy-one of the crew of 750 were saved by another light cruiser, it is believed that more survivors were picked up by fishing boats who were in the neighborhood and who have been responsible for the end-jamming of legislation into the end of a six-month session have been the foremost users of free lunch privileges on the railroads.

When the members of the Forty-eighth assembly voted to pass the utility act probably not more than a dozen knew that they were voting away the free-pass graft.

It was a joke on the house of representatives which killed an anti-pass bill after the senate had passed it, to have the "whitewash" vote it own free ride.

Leaders in the movement to keep taxes said they would be on the job until the pay of legislators was raised from $1,000 a year to $3,500, but they went to sleep when the utilities act came along. As a result the next legislature probably will adjourn sine die as early as April instead of in June, as has been the custom.

PLAN SHORT SESSION

Illinois Lawmakers Expected to Hurry Up Their Work.

Three Reasons, One Political, Another Financial and a Third Both Financial and Political.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 4.—The session of the Forty-ninth general assembly, which will begin tomorrow at noon, promises to be the shortest gathering of the legislature in several years. There are three principal reasons for this outlook—one political, another financial and a third both financial and political.

The financial reason, which is the more potent, results from the fact that the state public utilities commission has promulgated a rule in keeping with the act under which it was created that no free passenger transportation shall be issued by the railroads of the state.

Members of the general assembly for the first time in history will have to pay their railroad fares to and from Springfield. Hence the men who have been responsible for the end-jamming of legislation into the end of a six-month session have been the foremost users of free lunch privileges on the railroads.

REORGANIZE SERVIAN ARMY

Serb Invasion of Hungary Will Probably Be Launched Some Time This Month.

Nish, Jan. 4.—Crown Prince Alexander, commander-in-chief of the Servian field forces, has begun the reorganization of the Servian army. The Serb invasion of Hungary will probably be launched this month. The following official announcement is made:

"The Austrians attempted to bombard Belgrade with four monitors but were driven off. The defenses facing the Danube at Belgrade are being strengthened. All of Servia is now free of Austrian soldiers."

The naval men began to jump aboard, but even then there was danger of losing the boat as the seas were running thirty feet high. After a half hour's work, however, all were safely rescued. One lad of 19 was so exhausted that he required immediate treatment to save his life.

When all had left the cutters its rope was cut, as it was full of water, having a hole under the hull.

Some of the rescued men had little clothing and they were cared for in the engine room. The naval men had been in the cutter for nearly twelve hours.

"We barely had time to save ourselves before the ship went down," said one of them. "The Formidable sank very rapidly, fore and aft. The weather was very rough, as the gale which had been blowing for several days had just begun to die down."

ANOTHER LOAD.

Secretary McAdoo declares that the ocean steamer freight rates are entirely too high.

He and the President were much rejoiced when the Interstate Commerce Commission allowed the increase in the freight rates asked for by the railroads, which adds a burden on the people of about $20,000,000 annually. The President and he favored the taxation of our interstate commerce by repealing the tolls exemption, which added a great burden to the people by taxing some of the freights which he now says are entirely too high.

Herd and Lake Held Over.

The case of the Commonwealth against Herd and Baker, charged with the murder of Timothy Lakes, was held before Judge Shackelford Thursday. The defendants plead not guilty.

The proof, which was somewhat circumstantial, was in substance as follows:

Lakes, Baker and Herd were in one room of the residence of the dead man and had been engaged in stripping tobacco. They had suspended the work for the day at noon, and after dinner they were having a jolly time drinking and playing. Some discussion had arisen about a trade of pistols between Herd and Lakes. Lakes and Herd engaged in a contest shooting at a target through an open window. All of the loads in Lakes' pistol were fired and two cartridges remained in Herd's pistol. It was made known that Lakes had no other cartridges and his pistol was taken by his son Melvin and put away in an adjoining room. Mrs. Lakes came into the room where the three men were seated around a stove and Herd invited her to take a drink of whisky from a flask which he had when she declined to do, and picking up the flask, took it into an adjoining room and set it down. About this time she heard the report of a pistol and going back to the door of the tobacco room, she was unable to get it open, and said that she heard Herd and Baker was towards the door hurriedly and then the door was opened and they ran out. Herd had his pistol in his hands. Baker said to Mrs. Lakes that Lakes had killed himself. This Mrs. Lakes denied and said: "You have killed him!" Her son, Melvin, then undertook to get his father's gun from the rack with the intention of shooting Herd and Baker, but was prevented from so doing by his mother. Herd and Baker ran from the house and went into hiding.

Young Lakes went for assistance, a nearby magistrate was notified and he summoned a coroner's jury, who came to the premises and reviewed the remains. An examination of the body showed that a bullet had penetrated the head, entering on the left side about three inches above the left ear and coming out a little above and behind the right ear. The frontal bone above the right eye was crushed in. An examination of the purse of Mr. Lake showed that a ten dollar bill ($10) and a five dollar bill ($5), which he had had in it in the morning, was missing. Both defendants denied having committed the crime and said that Lakes shot himself, but Mrs. Lakes and Melvin Lakes both stated that Herd said to them when he came from the room that he had killed Lakes and that he would also kill Melvin Lakes if he took his father's gun from the rack.

TURKS FORTIFY AN ISLAND

Place Defensive Works on the Island of Marmora in the Sea of Same Name.

Constantinople, Jan. 4.—Military dispatches say the Turks are fortifying the Island of Marmora in the Sea of Marmara.

It is believed that Abdul Hamid, former sultan, has been secretly taken into the interior of Asia Minor, as he has left this city.

The Turkish forces in the west are commandeering bridge building supplies to be used in crossing the Suez canal.

A big army of about 150,000 men has been concentrated in and around this city.

It is officially reported that the Turkish army under Enver Pasha, which invaded Transcaucasia, is making progress near Sarikamisch. It is accompanied by a number of German military men.

Chasteen Caught.

As Chasteen, who shot and wounded Policeman DeVore and Wm. Maupin, and who has been in hiding ever since, was caught at Mt. Vernon Tuesday. Officer Claude DeVore went over to that place immediately to bring him back here yesterday, but he had to leave him, by advice of a physician. Chasteen resisted arrest and it took the sheriff, a deputy and the jailer to subdue him, he being considerably hurt about the head.

Later—Judge Shackelford Saturday granted each of the defendants bond in the sum of $2,500, which they gave and were released.

PLAN FOR CONSTRUCTING CONCRETE SILO

Well-Constructed Silos.
Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

A well-constructed home-made silo will last indefinitely, and there is no danger of its blowing down, rotting out or being attacked by vermin, says Farmers' Bulletin 589 of the United States department of agriculture.

The cost of the home-made silo depends so much on the size of the silo and on the local price of materials that no definite amount can be assigned which would be applicable to all conditions. Recently collected data on the cost of home-made silos show an average cost of concrete silos to be $2.55 per ton capacity. The stave silos cost $1.63 and the modified Wisconsin cost $1.61 per ton capacity. Silos of small diameters cost more per ton capacity than silos of large diameters.

There are some features which are essential to the construction of all silos and without which silage will not keep in perfect condition.

1. The walls should be air-tight. Since the keeping of silage depends upon the exclusion of air it is imperative that the walls of the silo be built in such a way as to keep out the air. The lumber should be well matched, and that containing large knots should be rejected. In concrete silos a wash on the inside with cement or with raw coal tar thinned with gasoline is effective in making the walls impervious to air. Care should be taken that the doors fit closely into their frames.

2. The walls should be smooth and plumb so that the silage will not adhere to them in settling and thus cause air spaces in the outer edge of the silage. Furthermore, the walls should be capable of standing considerable lateral strain without cracking or bulging. This is one reason why rectangular silos are unsuccessful.

3. The silo must be deep enough so that the pressure from above will thoroughly pack the silage and force out the air. The greater the pressure the less air in the silo and the less will be the loss of nutrition materials by fermentation.

4. The only form of silo to be recommended is one which is round. This is the cheapest, capacity consider-ered, and the walls are more rigid than those of the rectangular or octagonal forms. This results in more perfect preservation of the silage.

The silo should be placed outside rather than inside the barn. As a silo ordinarily does not need the protection of a barn, it is not economical to use barn space for this purpose. An exception to this rule may be made in the case of the round barn. A silo in the middle of a round barn serves to support the superstructure as well as to place the silage in a position for convenient feeding. A silo so placed, however, is liable to be very inconvenient to fill. The most popular location is not more than a few feet from the barn and opening into a separate feeding room. The door of the barn can then be closed and the silage odors kept out of the stable at milking time.

The silo should not be built in the ground so deeply as to make it necessary to lift the silage more than five feet in getting it out from the bottom. In other words, the bottom should not be more than five feet below the lowest door.

The Size and Capacity of the Silo. The diameter of the silo will depend upon the amount of silage to be fed daily. The silage should be removed from the top at the rate of 1 1/2 to 3 inches per day, depending upon climatic conditions. The warmer the weather the more silage must be removed from the surface daily in order to prevent spoiling. For the winter feeding season it is safer to figure upon removing two inches daily rather than a smaller amount. A common error in building is to make the diameter too large for the size of the herd. The weight of a cubic foot of silage varies according to the pressure to which it is subjected, but in a silo 30 feet deep it will average about forty pounds. So, by knowing the amount of silage to be fed daily, it is possible to estimate what the diameter of the silo should be to permit the removal of a certain number of inches in depth each day.

The following table will prove of interest to those contemplating building silos:

Relation of size of herd to diameter of silo for winter feeding.

Aaron Sharp For Jailer.

Aaron Sharp, of Red House precinct, wants to be jailed of Madison county. Everybody, or nearly everybody, in the county of Madison, where he has spent his life, knows him. A Democrat tried and true, he has always stood by the party, has never held office, but now asks the democracy of the county to honor him with the nomination. He guarantees that if elected he will faithfully discharge his duties and that "no guilty man will escape." Ask his neighbors about him.

Big crops usually follow a year of drought, in the main due to the thorough pulverization of soil from that agency. Frost is another factor that gives big crops whenever it enters the ground deeply, and either of these agencies will till the soil deeper than any tool can reach.

There is yet another agency which should never be neglected, deep-rooting plants, which, beside their mechanical and acid action on the soil, bring to the surface again fertility that has leached or that which is out of reach of the shallower rooted plants, or those with less subsoil penetration. Wheat or oats will attack the subsoil to a limited extent. Alfalfa and sweet clover will work with us and for us all the time.

While we work the top soil free of weeds, and retain the soil mulch, which will enable the alfalfa to survive, the plant roots are doing an infinitely greater work below, besides adding bacteria, bringing a soil to life that has lain practically dead, except at the very top, for all the ages that have gone.

Gain From Use of Manure.

The net return realized from a ton of yard manure under general farming conditions depends upon the soil, method of cultivation and crops grown.

The Ohio experiment station has obtained an increase amounting to $4.60 per ton from yard manure used at the rate of eight tons per acre in a five-acre field of corn, wheat, rye, clover, timothy and vetch. Four tons being supplied to corn and four tons to wheat, this return being the average for the third five-year period, the average return from the yard manure used in all tests in which rotation is practiced has been $2.97 per ton for the whole time.

Green Cabbage Worm.

For the green cabbage worm use dry paris green dusted on the cabbage when wet, or a spray made by mixing three pounds of paris green with 50 gallons of water, and adding two or three pounds of soap. For cauliflower white hellebore should be used instead of paris green.

DEPTH OF THE TILE DRAINS

Type of Soil and Fall of Land Must Be Taken Into Consideration Before Starting Work.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

In putting in a system of tile drainage we must consider the type of the soil to be drained as well as the fall of the land before we decide upon the size of the tile and the depth it is to be placed.

On a coarse soil, where the object of the drainage system is to remove the soil water from around the roots of the plants, the tile should be laid three or four feet deep, but on a clay soil, I believe that the tile should be laid as shallow as is consistent with the climatic conditions and the fall of the land.

On clay soils the chief object of tile drainage is to remove the surface water as rapidly as possible after heavy rains before it ruins the growing crops.

To do this it must have an easy access to the tile and for this reason they should not be put down more than two or two and a half feet deep.

On a clay soil it requires longer for the tile drainage system to become efficient after it is installed, because it takes longer for the watercourses to form through the cracks, decayed root passages and animal burrows, hence we will secure better immediate results from a shallow system of drainage than when the tile are placed deep.

It has required a number of years for some of the systems of drainage to become efficient in clay soils and few farmers can afford to wait a number of years for results.

On one of our farms the tile drains were installed 20 years ago and are doing far better work today than they did the first ten years they were put in. These drains were put in from three to four feet deep and for the first few years they did very poor service.

Which is the third time?

NOTHING BETTER FOR WEAK WOMEN

"I Never Spent Any Money
That Did Me So Much
Good as That I Spent for Vinol."

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—"I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol. My nerves were in a very bad condition and I was weak, tired, and worn out and often drowsy headaches. I had tried cod liver oil, doctor's medicines, and other preparations without benefit.

"One day a friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and soon my appetite increased. I slept better and now I am strong, vigorous and well and can do my housework with pleasure."—Mrs. J. F. LAMBORN, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Now would take Mrs. Lamborn's advice and try Vinol for there are literally thousands of men and women who were formerly run-down, weak and nervous, who owe their good health to Vinol.

It is the medicinal, tissue building elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strengthening influence of tonic iron contained in Vinol, which is so efficient in all such cases.

Preparing For War Makes War.

The Lexington Herald has printed a long letter from Dr. E. B. Barnes, of this city, on the subject of "Armaments as Inducements of War and a Warlike Spirit." Dr. Barnes was of the opinion that the maintenance of navies and the standing army was one of the inducing causes of war. The article is highly commended.

Mr. Thomas Williams, of Clark county, and Miss Elsie Davis, of this county, were married at the home of the bride, near Red House, Saturday evening. Mrs. Williams is a beautiful and intelligent young woman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Davis. Mr. Williams is the son of R. I. Williams, of Clark, and is an industrious young man. After the wedding a delightful supper was served at the home of the bride, and a large gathering of relatives and friends enjoyed the feast. After a short bridal trip, the young couple will be at home to their friends in Clark county.

Judge and Mrs. Clay Arnold, of Lancaster, entertained with a handsome luncheon on Monday in honor of the Arnold-Oldham bridal party.

Mr. Vard Taylor entertained a number of his community friends at a 7 o'clock dinner Thursday at his beautiful home at Waco. Those present were Prof. J. R. Robinson, Hon. C. L. Seary, Rev. B. O. Beck, A. R. Gibbs, N. C. Bonny, H. C. Bonny, Elmer Tate, D. Z. Taylor, W. L. Blanton, R. M. Rowland, Jones Lykins, B. F. Boggs, G. S. McKinney, G. B. Moores and A. W. Grinstead. After the five course dinner was served, Rev. Beck read a paper on "The Prince of Peace," which was discussed by Messrs. Blanton, H. T. Bonny and McKinney. Mr. Seary read a paper, "Should the U. S. Disarm (partially or completely) In the Interest of Peace?" He presented a strong and convincing argument on the negative side of the question which was discussed at length by all present. Prof. Robinson's paper on "Domestic Peace,"—how secured and how perpetuated—was classical, and elicited the widest discussion.

Mr. L. B. Weisenburgh celebrated New Year's morning with a smoker at 11 o'clock at the parsonage Rev. W. M. Williams united in holy wedlock James Johnson, of Brookstone, to Miss Bessie Conner, of Red House. They left immediately for Estill county for a short bridal tour.

Notice.

We are indebted to Mrs. Emily Cheek, of Mountain Grove, Mo., for a clipping containing some excerpts from a speech made by Prof. R. K. Phelps, principal of the Mountain Grove High School, delivered to the Sorosis Club of that little city.

Prof. Phelps was born in Madison county, near White Hall, and is a son of Joseph Phelps, who left this State about 20 years ago, when Prof. Phelps was but a small child.

The address was highly complimented by the local press. His many relatives in this country will be glad to know of Prof. Phelps' preference in his adopted home.

The conclusion reads as follows:

"In conclusion, I want to go back to my original premise that America is the great melting pot for all the nations of the world. The modern American is a compound of practically all the nationalities of Europe. It would be difficult to separate him into his constituent elements and say which has been most influential in making him what he is. But after a careful perusal of our social, political, economic, commercial and industrial development, it would be difficult to say that any factor has been more important than the Teuton."

"All the names I have mentioned have been those of illustrious men—men of genius, who have towered above their fellows. But there are now 5,400,000 people living in America who were born in Germany. I do not think I have mentioned the most important contribution of the Teutons to our civilization. I think that it has been themselves. The average German emigrant, just as he comes to the United States, has an important part to play in our national life—humble, obscure and unknown as he is. Such as he give us those great foundation qualities—Germanic industry, frugality, thoroughness, faith and appreciation of the beautiful and the true. On such as he pin the hope of the Republic of the future. On such as he resists the responsibility of saying whether this Republic will be, as it has been in the past, a Republic meeting the responsibilities of today and measuring up to the possibilities of the future; a Republic resting securely on the foundation stones, quarried by revolutionary patriots from the mountain of eternal truth; a Republic, proclaiming as principle and applying as practice, the self-evident proposition that men are created equal and endowed by their Creator with the inalienable rights of life, liberty and property; a Republic which shakes thrones and dissolves aristocracies by its silent example, and rives light and inspiration to those who sit in political darkness and despair; a Republic which solves the problems of civilization and hastens the oncoming of a universal brotherhood whose history, like the path of the just, is as the shining light, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day..."

How To Cure a La Grippe Cough.

"Coughs that hang on" demand treatment. Stop and think! Reason and common sense tell you that it is folly to "grin and bear it." Those racking a grippe coughs that wrench the body and cause soreness and pains in the lungs yield more quickly to Foley's Honey and Tar than to any other treatment. Forty years record of successes proves this. For coughs, colds, croup and other distressing ailments of throat, chest, lungs, larynx and bronchial tubes, you can find nothing that will compare with this reliable remedy. STOP BUYING EXPENSIVE COUGH REMEDIES.Make The Best At Home.

Money spent for the old style, ready made, cough syrups in bottles holding only 2 to 3/4 ounces is very largely wasted, because most of them are composed principally of sugar and water. Yet you have to pay the same price as if it was all medicine. Stop wasting this money. You can make a better cough medicine at home at one-fifth the cost. Merely go to Henry L. Perry's Drug Store and ask for 2 ounces (50c worth) of Schifman's Concentrated Expectorant. Mix this with one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of boiling water, which makes a full pint (16 ounces). This new, simple, pleasant remedy is guaranteed to relieve the worst cough or cold. Also excellent for Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and whooping cough. One bottle will make enough home made cough medicine to probably last the whole family the entire winter. Children like it, it is so pleasant to take and is positively constituents no chloroform, opium, morphine, or other narcotics as do most cough mixtures.

The automobile has helped to make farm life more pleasant. Thousands of farmers have bought them and dealers have made money. But we have more to sell to the farmer, and a better reason for selling it than has the Auto dealer. We can convince the farmer that running water, Modern Plumbing, Sewerage Disposal and Electric Lights will do more to make their life easier and happier all the year round than joy riding in summer. MISSION BELLS OF MONTEREY

O BELLS that ring, O bells that sang,
Amid the maturer wilderness
Till from that redended coast line sprang.
The gospel seed to earth and blesse,
What are the mission bells of Monterey?
O mission bells of Monterey!

O bells that crash, O bells that clash
Above the chin-neck crowded plain,
On wall and tower, on vallen dash,
Bells with the old refrain,
In mart and temple gone astray,
Ye clangle bells, ye jangle bells,
Ye wrangle bells of Monterey!

O bells that die, far, so nigh,
Come back once more across the sea,
Not with the distant funeral cry,
With the creed's austerity;
Come with his love alone to stay,
O mission bells! Eleison bells,
O mission bells of Monterey!

BROTHERHOOD.

THAT pleases but reproaches me.
Which leaves my brother bare;
Not wholly gives my brother care,
Who is not bound with care.
If I go free and sound and stout,
While his poor fettlers clank,
Untested still, I'll still cry out
And plead with whom I thank.

A ALMIGHTY, Thou who Father be
Of all of me of all,
Draw me together, bind me,
That whosoever fall,
The other's hand may fail him not,
The last of success that his lot
May claim from son of thine.

I WOULD be fed, I would be clad,
I would be housed and dry,
But if it be my heart is sad—
What ben fit have I?
The load which brings relief,
And he shall have his joy secure,
Who shares that joy with grief.
—Edward S. Martin.

HUNDREDS HEAR COOPER LECTURE.

Faulty Methods of Living Is Responsible For Most Diseases, He Says.

L. T. Cooper, the man who created such a favorable impression in the big Eastern cities with his health theories and medicine, has attracted immense gatherings in Lexington, where the famous philanthropist has delivered a series of lectures in connection with his introduction of Tanlac, the medicine that is producing such remarkable results in Central Kentucky.

Probably ten or fifteen thousand have heard Cooper talk during the past few weeks. Possessed of an unusual amount of personal magnetism, Cooper seems to draw his crowds from all walks of life, and from everywhere in the Blue Grass section.

During the course of a recent lecture, he said: "Possibly the most prevalent and distressing condition known to us Americans is chronic catarrh of the mucous membranes. Catarrh of the stomach is the most frequent cause of dyspepsia and catarrhal conditions in the nose and throat lead to inevitable deafness. Show me a man whose hearing is affected and I will show you a man who is suffering from catarrh.

"Frequently," continued the great student, "the lungs become diseased by the extension of catarrhal inflammation by way of the bronchial tubes to the lung substance."

"The mental and physical state of these old crusted Tories—some of them in the humbler walks of life. And at ~~they~~ they oppose light—even as they once tried to resist lighting what Longfellow called the 'street lamps of the ocean.' The instance we have in mind is noted in Emerson's Journal. Sixty years ago the philosopher visited Nauset, on Cape Cod. Collins, the keeper told us he found resistance of the old crusted Tories—some of them in the humbler walks of life. And at ~~they~~ they oppose light—even as they once tried to resist lighting what Longfellow called the 'street lamps of the ocean.' The instance we have in mind is noted in Emerson's Journal. —Collier's Weekly.

Medical science tells us that an imperfect nervous system is often the cause of the tendency to cruelty sometimes seen in young children—that if a child shows a disposition to torture animals or injure other children it does not follow that the boy or girl is a degenerate; it may be due to the presence of toxins in the blood. The well-known tendency to cruelty on the part of those addicted to the excessive use of intoxicants, bears out this statement. Men, who in sober moments are tender husbands and fathers, become transformed by strong drink into savages and fiends. Even the more "temperate" use of liquor tends to dull the sensibilities and cloud the finer instincts. The toxin in the blood of a moderate drinker, while not always causing a noticeable degeneracy in the man himself, is transmitted to his offspring, and in the third or fourth generation, if not before, is manifested in the "cruel tendencies" of children that excite our wonder.

—Collier's Weekly.

RUINING A VESTED INTEREST.

Collier's Weekly, which with commendable frequency gives the liquor traffic an editorial slab, recently answered as follows the saloonist's claim that to destroy the saloon is to destroy a vested interest:

"Every general raises its crop of old crusted Tories—some of them in the humbler walks of life. And at ~~they~~ they oppose light—even as they once tried to resist lighting what Longfellow called the 'street lamps of the ocean.'

"Frequently," continued the great student, "the lungs become diseased by the extension of catarrhal inflammation by way of the bronchial tubes to the lung substance."

A Member of The Rebeccas A Bad Case of Nasal Catarrh Cured By Pe-ru-na.

That any case of nasal catarrh can be cured by an internal medicine is denied by some. Only a glance at our files would be necessary to convince any sane person that catarrh can be cured by the internal use of Peruna.

Mrs. Victoria Pickel, of Columbus, is a case of this sort. She had nasal catarrh very badly, and was cured by Peruna. We will let her tell her own story. Mrs. Victoria M. Pickel, 130 E. Mound Street, Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"I have been using Peruna for catarrh, having had a very aggravated case, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs. When I did get the nasal organs opened, the mucus would drop into my throat and make me very sick."

"A friend advised me to take Peruna, and after using four bottles I was cured. I have no trouble now, and am happy to say that I am enjoying the best of health and attending to my lodge duties, being a member of the Rebecca Lodge of Odd Fellows."

"I would recommend Peruna to those suffering with the same obnoxious trouble."

BRING THE CASH

THE $1,000,000.00 MYSTERY NEWS of the MOVIES..

(By Harold McGrath)

"There was not a servant to be found in the entire house! What in the world could that mean? Used as she was to heartrending suspense, she was none the less terrified. Something had taken the servants from the house, from whence was the danger to come his time? Where was Jones? Why did he not return as he had promised? It was long past the hour when he said he would be back."

She went into the library and picked up the telephone. She was told that Mr. Norton had sent out an assignment, but that he would be notified the moment he returned. She opened a drawer in the desk. She touched the automobile, but did not take it up. She left the drawer open, however.

Earlier at the newspaper office that night, Jim went into the managing editor's office and laid a bullet man-scrip on that gentleman's desk.

"Is this it?"

"It is," said Jim.

"You have captured them?"

"No; but there is a net about them from which not one shall escape. There's the story of the adventures of the butler, Jones. You'll find it exciting enough. You might as well send it in to the composing room. At midnight I'll telephone the introduction. It's a scoop. Don't worry about that."

The editor rifled the pages. "A hundred and twelve pages, 300 words to the page; man it's a novel!"

"It'll read like one."

"Sit down for a moment and let me skim through the first story."

At the end of ten minutes the editor laid down the copy. He opened a drawer and took out two envelopes. The blue one he tore up and dropped into the waste basket. Norton understood and smiled. They had meant to discharge him if he fell down. The other envelope was a fat one.

"Open it," said the editor, smiling a little to himself.

This envelope contained a check for $2,500, two round-trip first-class tickets to London, together with innumerable continental tickets such as are issued to tourists.

"Why two?" asked Jim, innocently. "Forgot it, my boy, forgot it. You ought to know that in this office we don't employ blind men. The whole staff is on. There you are, a fat check and three months' vacation. Go and get married; and if you return before the three months are up I'll fire you myself on general principles."

Jim laughed happily and the two men shook hands. Then Jim went forth to complete the big assignment. Five minutes later Florence called him up to learn that he had gone.

What should she do? Jones had told her to stay in the house and not to leave it. But where was he? Why did he not come? What was the meaning of his desertion by the servants? She wandered about aimlessly, looking out of windows, imagining forms in the shadows. Her imagination had not deceived her; she had heard doors close softly.

"Susan, Susan!" she murmured; but Susan was in the hospital.

"Oliver Twist?" What had possessed her to start reading that old tale again? She should have read something of a light and joyous character. After half an hour's wandering about the lonely house she returned to the library, feeling that she would be safer where both telephone and revolver were.

And while she sat waiting for she knew not what, her swift beating heart sending the blood into her throat so that it almost suffocated her, a man turned into the street and walked noiselessly toward the Hargreave place. He passed a man leaning against a lamppost, but he never turned to look at him.

This man, however, threw away his cigar and footed it to the nearest pay station. He knew well enough that he had just seen the man for whom he had been hunting all these weary but strenuous weeks—Stanley Hargreave in the flesh! Half an hour after his telephone message the chief of the Black Hundred and many lesser lights were on their way to the house of mystery. Had they known!

Now, the man who had created this tremendous agitation went serenely on. He proceeded directly and fearlessly to the front door, produced a latchkey and entered. He passed through the hall and reception room to the library and paused on the threshold dramatically. Florence stood back with a sharp cry of alarm. She had heard the hall door open and close and had taken it for granted that Jones had entered.

There was a tableau of short duration.

"Don't you know me?" asked the stranger in a singularly pleasant voice.

Florence had been imposed upon too many times. She shook her head defiantly, though her knees shook so that she was certain that the least touch would send her over.

"I am your father, child!"

Florence slipped unsteadily behind the desk and seized the revolver which lay on the table. The man by the curtain smiled coldly. It was a smile that caused Florence to waver a bit. Still she extended her arm.

"You do not believe me?" said the man, advancing slowly.

"No. I have been deceived too many times, sir. Stay where you are. You will wait here till my butler returns. Oh, if I were only sure!" she burst out suddenly and passionately. "What proof have you that you are what you say?"

He came toward her, holding out his hands. "This that you cannot shoot me. Ah, the damnable wretches! What have they done to you, my child, to make you suspicious of every one? How I have watched over you in the street! I will tell you what only Jones and the reporter know, that the aviator died, that I alone was rescued, that I gave Norton the five thousand; that I watched the windows of the Rusian woman, and overheard nearly everything that she said in the secret chamber of the Black Hundred; that I was shot in the arm while crossing the lawn one night. And now we have the sounds from where we want them. They will be in this house for me within half an hour, and not one of them will leave it in freedom. I am your father, Florence. I am the lonely father who has spent the best years of his life away from you in order to secure your safety. Can't you feel the truth of all this?"

Norma Phillips, "Our Mutual Girl."

"No, no! Please do not approach any nearer; stay where you are!" At that moment the telephone rang. With the revolver still leveled she picked up the receiver.

"Hello! Who is it? . . . Oh, Jim, Jim, come at once! I am holding at bay a man who says he is my father. Hold him where he is, you say? All right, I will. Come quick!"

"Jim!" murmured the man, still advancing. He must have had that revolver. The poor child might spoil the whole affair. "So what Jones tells me is true, that you are going to marry this man?"

She did not answer.

"With or without my consent?"

If only he would drop that fearless smile, she thought. "With or without anybody's consent," she said.

"What in the world can I say to you to convince you?" he cried. "The trap is set; but if Braine and his men come and find us like this, good heaven, child, we are both lost! Come, come!"

"Stay where you are!"

At that moment she heard a sound at the door. Her gaze roved; and it was enough for the man. He reached out and caught her arm. She tried to tear herself loose.

"My child, God's name, listen to reason! They are entering the hall and they will have us both."

Suddenly Florence knew. She could not have told you why; but there was an appeal in the man's voice that went to her heart.

"You are my father!"

"Yes, yes! But you've found it out just a trifle too late, my dear. Quick; this side of the desk!"

Braine and his men dashed into the library. Oiga entered leisurely.

"Pot of them!" yelled Braine exultantly. "Both of them together; what luck!"

There was a sharp, fierce struggle; and when it came to an end Hargreave was trussed to a chair.

"Ah, so we meet again, Hargreave!" said Braine.

Hargreave shrugged. What he wanted to say.

"We have you. Where is it or I'll twist your heart before your eyes."

"Father, forgive me!"

"Where is it?" Braine seized Florence by the wrist and swung her toward him.

"Don't tell him, father; don't mind me," said the girl bravely.

Braine, smiling his old evil smile, drew the girl close. It was the last time he ever touched her.

"Look!" screamed Oiga.

Every one turned, to see Jones' face peering between the curtains. There was an ironic smile on the butler's lips.

"After him!" cried Braine, releasing Florence.

"After him!" mimicked a voice from the hall.

The curtains were thrown back suddenly. Jones appeared, and Jim and the Russian agent and a dozen policemen. Tableau!

Braine was the only man who kept his head. He floored Norton, smashed him to the floor.

"Good form," said the reporter.

"Good form," said the reporter.
